Ten days of celebration for the 112th birthday, still trained headlights of Emma Morano, the verbanese third overall in Italy for longevity. In her home next to the church of San Leonardo today was a day of sightseeing. It 'came in fact the US researcher James Clement who is making a visit to Italy to those who have passed the 110 years of age as part of the worldwide study conducted by George Church with Harvard Medical School of Boston in Massachusetts to find out, through DNA, the secret of longevity and immunity to major diseases. But that's not all. Rome has also come the crew of the famous Rai broadcast "Live Life": Dado Coletti did a long interview to Mrs. Emma and family members that are close as well as the deputy mayor Sergio Pella. The service will be broadcast on Rai during the holiday season.

In the pictures a few extra moments of Dado Coletti Emma Morano.
